I'm approaching [Firm Name] about a strategic partnership opportunity.

SiyaBusa ERP is a locally-built enterprise platform that could create a new revenue stream for your firm:

For context: We've built a production-ready ERP (25+ modules) with native SA compliance that's 40% below SAP/Oracle pricing.

Many of your clients have outgrown Xero/Sage but can't afford enterprise ERP. We solve that gap.

Would [Partner Name] be open to a conversation about partnership models?

Best,

[Your Name]

Post 1: Problem Statement

Unpopular opinion: South African SMEs are being held hostage by ERP pricing.

Here's the reality:

Enterprise ERP: R50K-R200K/month + R500K+ localization

Basic accounting software: Can't handle manufacturing, warehouse, or HR

Where does that leave a R50M revenue business that needs:

- Inventory management
- Manufacturing (BOM, production)
- SA-compliant payroll
- SARS submission prep

Stuck. That's where.

60,000+ mid-market SA businesses need a better option.

(Working on something to fix this. More soon.)

Post 3: Social Proof/Milestone

Milestone: 228 database tables. 400+ API endpoints. 25+ modules.

All built in 18 months. All production-ready. All deployed on AWS.

SiyaBusa ERP isn't a pitch deck – it's working software.

Next step: Finding 30 companies to beta test with us (5 per industry across 6 verticals).

The hardest part of building an ERP? Not the code.

It's getting people to trust something new when they've been burned by failed implementations before.

That's why we're offering:

- 3 months free
- Full support
- Direct developer access
- No risk

Because we know the only way to prove it works is to prove it works.

Post 4: Founder Story

18 months ago, I asked a simple question:

"Why can't a R50M South African company afford proper ERP?"

The answers were frustrating:

- "Enterprise ERP costs R2M+ to implement."
- "Global vendors don't prioritize SA compliance."
- "Just use multiple systems and reconcile manually."

So I started building.

Today, SiyaBusa ERP has:

- 25 modules that rival enterprise solutions
- Native SARS, BCEA, POPIA compliance
- AI assistants that answer questions in plain English
- Pricing 40% below enterprise competitors

We're not funded. We're not acquired. We're just building what South African businesses actually need.

Beta program starts January – 30 spots (5 per industry). Who wants in?
